Healthcare Requires a Special Kind of Leadership. In today's healthcare industry, building a pipeline of talented leaders and obtaining leadership success is no longer just a luxury, it's critical. The traditional strategy of simply hoping physician, nursing and administrative leaders emerge can no longer be effective. The key aspects of the leadership role involves influencing group activities and coping with change. A difficulty when considering leadership of healthcare professionals is that most theories were not developed within a healthcare context but were usually developed for the business setting and then applied to healthcare.
